Red Cross Benefit At Zella School.

A very successful concert and box social was given at Zella school on Thursday evening last in aid of the Junior Red Cross.

Mr. Austin, secretary of the local branch of the Red Cross, spoke of the excellent work being done by the Junior Red Cross in Calgary.

Musical selections were given by Miss Smeatland, the Misses Brown, and Mr. Carter, of Calgary. Mrs. Clarence Bolton and Mrs. Frank Hughes, recitations by Mrs. Hugg, Mrs. McElroy, Mr. Jim Phillips and Mr. Hutton.

A Red Cross sketch was very cleverly presented by the school children.

The boxes were auctioned off by Mr. J. W. Phillips in his usual inimitable manner, much amusement being created during the sale. The splendid sum of $35.45 was realized from the sale and the total amount contributed to the Junior Red Cross Hospital.

The committee wishes to thank all those who in any way helped to make the affair such a success.

EVANGELICAL NOTES

The sermon subject at the Evangelical Church service next Sunday morning will be "After Easter—What? or Our Ever Present Lord."

Legislation Provides for Wheat Control Boards.

The government of Alberta has introduced legislation providing for the setting up of an emergency wheat board to license and restrict, within the province, sales and deliveries of wheat. Similar legislation has been introduced in Saskatchewan and Manitoba. The passing of this legislation does not mean that wheat control boards will be set up immediately, but the governments of each province will have power to do so, if conditions warrant, as the crop season advances. Then the act can be put in force by an order-in-council.

At the present time it is not definitely known what the basis for reckoning the individual quota will be in case the act is put in force. The basis fixed by the exporting countries signing the International Wheat Agreement was the average acreage sown over the 3 year period ending with July, 1933, and on the average annual yield over a 10-year period.

35 Big League Players in Joe E. Brown Comic

Dress 'em up in uniforms and it's hard to tell actor baseball players from those who earn their living on the diamond. In the production "Elmer The Great," showing at the Didsbury Opera House this Saturday we have Ray Jacobs, formerly of the Cubs, Ernie Ostrat of the Cardinals, Charles Root, Babe Herman and "Fut" Steinback, all from Chicago.

Steinback was just recently brought from the Los Angeles Club for $75,000 and three players. The picture went into production during the winter months when many big league players were wintering in California.

As Joe's acquaintance with the baseball world is nothing if not inclusive, all he had to do was call a few numbers and the baseball players for the picture were cinched. There isn't a ball player that doesn't know Joe, and the answer to Joe's phone calls invariably was that they'd be tickled to death even after Joe explained to these high-salaried pill slingers such as Truck Hannah, former catcher of the Yankees, and Larry French, Bill Brubaker and Jim Crandall, of Pittsburgh Pirates, and Wally Burger of Boston Braves, that their salaries would only be equal to that of "extras." It is interesting to note that Crandall is the son of old "Doc" Crandall, former pitcher for New York Giants. To top things off Beans Reardon, the National League umpire, plays the umpire in the picture.

Some 35 players altogether were rounded up, most of the others being on the Pacific Coast League or ex-Big League players.

A Toll Equal To War

Once a year for several years past with the approach of Spring which heralds, among other important happenings, the return of tens of thousands of motor cars and trucks to the highways of the country, attention has been directed in this column to the responsibility which rests upon the drivers of those cars and trucks to exercise due caution in their operation. Once again the attention of all motorists is drawn to this vitally important matter.

With the invention of the motor car, a new machine of great utility, as well as a source of pleasure, was provided. It is a machine of great power, and with the passing of the years the power of the individual car or truck has steadily increased. In so far as the machine itself is concerned, and keeping pace with its increased power and speed, there has been consistent improvement in its strength and in the provision of manifold safety devices. The modern car is, therefore, less liable to accident than its predecessor of fifteen, ten, even five years ago.

Further, with the enormous increase in the number of cars and trucks in use, there has been a great improvement in highway construction and maintenance, calculated to decrease accidents. On the other hand, these better highways have made possible driving at greater speeds than were possible upon the old roads of hygienic construction. It is a power which has encouraged the purchase of many more cars, both of which factors have resulted in greater density of traffic, and traffic moving much more rapidly.

Thus, to a greater degree than ever before, the human factor, the man or the woman at the wheel, becomes the controller in the matter of accidents. Unfortunately, far too many drivers fail to appreciate the enormous power of the machine they are operating—a power for destruction just as truly as a power for transportation. It is a power which the control of almost countless thousands of individuals which, improperly controlled, may mean death and injury not only to the careless and reckless motorist, but to others who are exercising every possible care and driving with the utmost caution and consideration for others.

"What war was that?" was the pointed question asked in the British House of Commons recently, during a debate on a motion dealing with the serious increase in the number of road accidents, when the Home Secretary submitted figures of "killed and injured" in road accidents in Great Britain in the eight years 1925-32. The figures were: Killed, 50,837; injured, 1,421,083. Furthermore, the detailed figures revealed an increase in the toll taken in each succeeding year.

Such was the record in a country noted for its good roads, for the excellence of the workmanlike operation and for general observance of laws and regulations. It is a record which establishes how necessary it is that the motorist should exercise the greatest care at all times and under all circumstances in the operation of his or her car.

At this time, owing to prevailing economic conditions, many people are operating cars which, under other and better conditions which prevailed a few years ago, they should have replaced with new cars. They are still using well worn tires which in other years they would have replaced with new and stronger tires. Because of the necessity of keeping expenditures for repairs down to a minimum, many cars have not been overloaded as in former years; brakes may not be in full working order; lamps may be defective; springs and bolts and other accessories may be worn thin, right to the breaking point. Such cars, if operated at an undue speed, may easily spell disaster not only for the driver and passengers, but for other motorists or pedestrians. All persons whose cars are not in absolutely first class condition are under the grave responsibility of driving with unusual care and observing every precaution. In fact, they owe a duty to themselves and to all other people not to operate their cars if they are in a condition dangerous to operate.

But whether a car is in first class shape or not, the oft-repeated and emphasized duty which revolves upon all motorists remains. That duty is to know and to observe the accepted regulations governing traffic upon the highways and to obey the laws enacted for the protection of all and in the common interest of all. Even if laws and regulations did not establish a code of conduct for both motorists and pedestrians, there is the courtesy of the road which should be maintained and observed. Men should conduct themselves as gentlemen and women should behave as ladies. Courtesy should prevail upon the highways.

Instead of the present appalling record of accidents; instead of that record mounting higher year after year, a change for the better, a lower record—can be and ought to be established in 1931. It lies in the power of the individual motorist to bring about such a desirable result, and the motorist made more than any other person, will benefit therefrom.

A Strict Censorship

The law, which virtually authorized the Propaganda Ministry to veto or censor a film before it is made, provides for original version, seem derogatory to German interests may not be shown again.

When Painting Was Crime

Considered Sign of Worldliness In Early New England

Paint, now recognized as a protection and a beautifier, was considered a sign of worldliness and vanity in early New England. In 1630, a clergyman of Charlestown, Mass., was hailed before the city council, charged with the serious crime of painting the interior of his house. During the next forty years there was not a painter in all New England.

Canada Becoming An Important Radium Producer, With Steady Output From Great Bear Lake

Scarcely four years after the initial discovery of radium ore at Great Bear Lake, Northwest Territories, Canada has become an important producer of radium, with one mining company maintaining a steady production from its refinery at Fort Hope, Ontario, output from which already amounts to a few thousand milligrams. This company, which operates the Lakeview plant deposits at Great Bear Lake, is confident of its ability to continue to deliver a steady output of radium. The initial output has already been disposed of, the province of Ontario purchasing several hundred milligrams for use in its various cancer clinics. As production increases, radium will become available to fill the needs of the Dominion and of other British countries. In addition to radium, the company produces important quantities of uranium compounds, which enjoy an active demand from manufacturers of glass and porcelain, with the bulk of the present output going to the British Isles.

Contrary to a somewhat prevalent belief, the Canadian government is in no way connected with the commercial production of radium. The work of the Federal Department of Mines in devising the method now used by Eldorado as a basis for the treatment of the ores, and in mapping the area, being in the nature of services rendered to the mineral industry. Nothing is of commercial interest to the government as to the price of the radium. For a time, at least, radium production will be on a moderate scale and it is not expected that operations will result in any immediate large addition to the existing world supply of the element.

The Agricultural Situation

Report Just Prepared Deals With Many Facts Of Interest To The Farmer

In order to direct the attention of farmers and others to the valuable information available in various government departments, ten committees, composed of officials of the Departments of Agriculture and Trade and Commerce, have been at work for several weeks bringing together statistics and other information covering the entire agricultural situation. The completed report, which may be obtained from the Publications branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, deals with supply and demand, competition and prices, movements to market and marketing, storage holdings and farm products, production trends and in short, every subject of importance domestic and foreign.

Increase Is Alarming

Deaths From Organic Heart Disease Are Becoming More Frequent

In view of the alarming increase in deaths in Ontario from organic heart disease in 1932 there were 6,670 such deaths recorded, as compared with 3,747 in 1922, a jump of 78 per cent. In ten years. Dr. J. M. Rubin, minister of health, sounded what he termed "a solemn note of warning" to all young-old men and women of 50 and upwards, to "act their age."

"Above all," said he, "they should see that they have regular hours of rest, and that they submit themselves to periodical medical examinations which, after all, is not only their best safeguard, but an essential duty they owe to themselves, their families and their dependents."

A Helpful Suggestion

Letters addressed to newspaper sometimes get to the wrong department. An instance in point is that of the lady who wrote the household editor, asking: "How do I get green paint off my hands?"

Unfortunately, her inquiry was sent to the advertising department. It, however, brought an immediate reply: "Why not use large space for a few days and offer it at a great reduction in price?"

Ideal For Young Cattle

Combination Of Oats And Barley Good Start For Grain Feed

In the feeding and management of beef cattle, particularly in those of low beef prices, one of the main objectives is to make the maximum use of inexpensive home-grown feeds and pastures.

Canadian grown barley, oats, wheat and corn are excellent feeds for beef cattle. Barley is probably the most important of these grains. It is widely grown in Canada, is an excellent fattening feed and produces meat of a high quality with fat of a nice white color. In feeding trials conducted both in Canada and the United States, barley has been shown to be practically the equal of corn in the beef ration.

Oats have a tendency to produce growth rather than to fatten beef rapidly. This is due to the fact that they are higher in fibre, bulkier, and richer in protein than barley or corn. A combination of oats and barley is ideal for young cattle or for steers just starting on grain feed. At first the percentage of oats two can be about equal, but as the steers approach a finish the proportion of barley should be raised.

Wheat is best when fed in a mixture. In fact, a mixture of the grains, if available, is best at all times. Although wheat is usually too high in price to be economical, its feeding value is as high as barley or corn, and it can be fed up to thirty-five per cent of the grain ration.

Although corn is produced only to a limited extent in Canada, it is a good beef cattle feed and when available should be included in the ration. Many feeding experiments have indicated that a variety of grains and roughages produce the best results. The grain mixture should be supplemented with protein feeds such as linseed oilmeal, ground flax seed, etc., when the quality of hay is inferior.

Good pastures alone will carry all classes of beef cattle, except those being given a high degree of finish for market. It is advisable in finishing beef on pasture to feed some grain if the cattle are of sufficiently good quality to warrant the extra cost. Experiments have shown that cattle finished on grass with grainas compared to those finished on grass alone have a distinctly higher dressing percentage and yield better finished, more attractive carcasses which command the highest price. Fewer cattle more highly finished by the use of Canadian coarse grains will go a long way to solving the question of higher prices and greater returns. Division of Animal Husbandry, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Separate Grading Of Garnet Wheat Is Sought By Vancouver Grain Exporters' Association

Canada's Trade With Brazil Has Improved

Wheat, Apples And Rubber Exported To South East Year

Canada's trade with Brazil has improved in 1932 by more than $700,000, according to a statement from the Department of Trade and Commerce.

Canadian wheat re-entered the Brazilian market in 1932 after an absence of two years. In 1929 Canada shipped 50,000 bushels to that country, but did not export any more until 1930, when 265,333 bushels were sent. In 1931 Canada exported 279,670 bushels, valued at $1,767,713.

Canadian apples were introduced into Brazil last year with shipments totalling 1,370 barrels, valued at $9,800.

Rubber tie casings to the extent of 77,956 were shipped to Brazil last year, as compared with 36,676 the preceding year, and 367,679 inner tubes as compared with 19,880 in 1932.

Searching For Rare Bird

Scientists Taking Long Journey To Find Zoological Specimen

With the aim of capturing Australia's rarest bird, the night parrot, eight scientists recently set out from Melbourne, Australia, on one of the longest journeys ever made in search of a zoological specimen, reports an official of the Canadian National Steamships. The vessels ply between Canada, Australia and New Zealand. This bird lives by night and hides by day, and the scientists expect to travel 5,000 miles before they secure a specimen. The night parrot was first found by white men 80 years ago. One of the members of the expedition has been admitted a member of a native tribe whose craft in tracking animals and birds is almost uncanny.

Carried Out Instructions

An ambitious lady, about to entertain a Duchess for the first time, gave very careful instructions to the maid who was to open the door about the fashion in which the great lady was to be received.

"Now, Mary," she said, "remember whenever you address the Duchess you must say 'Your Grace'." When the great day arrived and the maid opened the door to the Duchess and the latter inquired if Mrs. was at home, the maid answered: "Yes, milady she is, and may the Lord make us truly thankful for what we are about to receive!"

Toronto's relief costs in 1932 it is estimated will reach $2,250,000.

Amendments to the Canada Grain Act to provide for separate grading of garnet wheat are sought by Ottawa by the Vancouver Grain Exporters' Association on the grounds that overseas millers report unsatisfactory milling results when Garnet wheat is mixed with Marquis.

The action was requested in a letter to Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce. The association pointed out that Vancouver is particularly concerned because most of Canada's Garnet wheat is grown in Alberta and shipped through Vancouver.

The letter cited the spread at Vancouver of 3 1/2 cents to six cents between No. 1 Northern, which is not permitted to contain Garnet, and No. 2 Northern, which contains Garnet. It compared this spread with that of only three cents at Fort William, where Marquis wheat predominates.

The overseas miller makes the very natural suggestion that he give the opportunity of buying Garnet wheat separately in order that he may blend such types of wheat as may suit his particular requirements," the letter continues. "He further points out that a statutory board of Canada and Marquis wheat should be exactly the same whether the shipment be received from Montreal or Vancouver."

The exporters expressed the belief that pure Garnet wheat would command on its own merits a better price than the mixed shipment of Marquis and Garnet now going abroad. As No. 2 Northern is Canada's most used and best-known grade, they declare, it is lack of uniformity of quality is a matter of national importance.

Situation Was Reversed

Figures Covering Tourist Cars Last Year Are Interesting

During the past calendar year 2,233,418 tourist automobiles entered Canada for a period of 24 hours; 863,120 for a period not exceeding 48 days, and 532 for a period exceeding 48 days according to a statement issued by the Department of National Revenue. This showed a considerable falling-off as compared with 1932 when the total for a 24-hour period was 2,670,290, for under 48 days 1,032,947 and for over 48 days 420.

While the tourist traffic into Canada was falling off, Canadians were travelling by motor car in other countries more extensively than the year before. The total Canadian automobiles exported for touring purposes last year was 417,132, in 1932 the total was 570,857.

Ontario ranked the list of Canadian cars touring outside of Canada with a total of 164,793, but was closely followed by British Columbia with 125,246.

Want Road Allowances Closed

Saskatchewan Stock Growers Wait On Premier To Present Their Case

Saskatchewan stock growers and ranchers are seeking concessions from the provincial government to allow for the closing of certain road allowances in the range countries along the United States border.

They are also asking that the government levy a flat rate of taxation for school purposes. When roads are closed they are asking the government for some form of satisfactory crossing for road traffic.

A delegation representing the Saskatchewan Livestock Growers' Association waited at Premier Anderson to place the requests of the association before him. H. Chisholm, head of the growers' association, and W. Kerr, Maple Creek head of the Ranchers' Association, were spokesmen.

Moving Backward.

In considering the suggested plan
for taking over the rural phone lines of this district and operating them on the farmer-owned plan, one man asked the question, "must we move backward?" Many of the isolated farmer-folk as well as those nearer town, relinquish a service that has woven itself into the fibre of community life.

The rural telephone system in the province is in a bad way. It is said that it never actually has paid its way,
a condition that has only become acute in the last few years, when the entire service, both urban and rural, has greatly diminished in revenue. But at the present time it becomes a question of how long the rural service can be continued
as a drag on provincial ownership.
An increased rural rate would be required to make it self-supporting, and the 50 per cent. remaining subscribers could not stand this.

The alternative presented seems to be a farm-owned system operating by units, with central connection.
Under such circumstances the province accepts in very serious loss from book-value of the system. But at least there is action. The districts continue to enjoy this very necessary facility, and the province at least is in no worse a condition than under the present system of drift.

When Mr. Howson was speaking here a few months ago he said that the rural phone service should be regarded as semi-social in nature.
There appears to be much truth in this. It is little short of a necessity, particularly in isolated areas and in areas where the citizens have discontinued the use of motor cars.
Only a few years ago the rural phone was being urged to install phones in every rural school. To many it seemed a necessity at that time.
And to many it seems as great a necessity today. The blizzards that have occasionally swept over this country have forced upon all humane citizens a realization of this need.
In cases of sickness or accident,
or even to relieve the strain of loneliness, the country telephone cannot be reckoned merely on the basis of revenue. It is as vital a social service as others which are maintained purely from that standpoint.

To abandon these lines, to drive
people back to pioneer conditions, should only be considered as a last alternative. When one element of society works from 12 to 16 hours a day, producing food that the world must have in order to live, when it is producing as capably and intelligently as it ever has, surely its contribution entitles it to some of the facilities of civilization.

Although the salvaging of the rural phone system presents an infinity of difficulties and some losses,
it would be better to face losses
and adopt some new measures than to consider discontinuance on any large scale.—Vulcan Advocate.

Farmers Annual Loss from Weeds Amounts to $179,200,000

Professors of the Agricultural College, University of Manitoba, specializing in weed control and eradication, have made compilations indicating that loss to Western Canada farmers through weeds amounts annually to $179,200,000.

In order to provide farmers with information as to the best means of combating the weed menace, Doctor
G. P. McRostie, Professor of Agronomy, and W. Tildesley, assistant on weed research, approached the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association with a proposal that the line elevator companies finance scientific investigation concerning weed eradication.
Recognizing the need for such a study of the weed problem, the elevatormen undertook to raise the funds necessary for the survey. This work has now been proceeding for the past three years, and the results of investigations of professors have been turned over to the Northwest Grain Dealers.

The studies relate to Couch Grass,
Sow Thistle, Canada Thistle, control of weeds by chemicals, and destruction of weed-seeds by ensiling. The first of the pamphlets dealing with these subjects is now in the hands of line country elevator agents for free distribution to farmers. Any farmer may now obtain the latest scientific information on this important subject at any local line elevator.
The quality of Canada's grain crops and profitable volume of production can only be obtained through control of weeds. Line elevator company owners are deserving of appreciation of the farming population in recognizing the need for scientific study of this problem and the making available of the results of these experiments to the farmers of the West.

Without Rural Phones Problem Profit Possible

Providing that the rural telephone problem could be solved, a handsome profit would be assured the Alberta Government. Telephones on toll and exchange operations, J. C. Thompson, provincial auditor told the legislature
committee on railways, telephones and irrigation.

The committee is probing the general telephone situation in the province. The A.G.T. balance sheet, said Mr. Thompson, revealed a corporate or accumulated deficit of $241,950 as at March 31st, 1933.
Capital losses and deferred charges were also revealed at a total amount of $2,932,811. Mr. Thompson stated that from this amount there must be taken $1,709,585 of sinking fund and other reserves that were properly deducible, leaving a net capital loss and deficit charges of $1,223,225, or a total accumulated deficit of $2,155,184.

Buying Farms on Bushel Basis Castor District

Forty-six cents a bushel for wheat at local elevators does not prevent farmers buying farms in Castor district. And they have good reason to believe that they will be able to live up to their agreements too, in spite of low prices. The latest way to buy land now is by the bushel.

The idea appeals to many nowadays especially to those who have been renting land for several years on crop shares, giving a third or fourth of the crop, as the case may be, to the landlord.

Buying land by the bushel is considered an easy way to pay for it, even during depressions. Deliver so many bushels of No. 1 wheat—and the farm is yours!

Bertie Hopp, who delivered a third of his crop to the owner on a renting agreement for several years, moved to a new location Wednesday last, 12 miles north of Castor. The farm he now occupies could not be bought for $10,000 five years ago, it being located in a good district where crop failures are few, and having rich soil, partly brushland. Yet Mr. Hopp made a deal for it with the owner, John Spady, on a bushel basis, the purchase price agreed on being 10,000 bushels of wheat.

One clause is an incentive to the buyer to grow all the wheat he can in order to settle for the land within ten years, as no interest is charged during that time—after that, 5 per cent, on the balance.

Provision is also made for an occasional short crop. Under 15 bushels to the acre the purchaser is to deliver one-third, and over that, one-half of the wheat to the original owner on the purchase price.

Great interest is shown here in a deal of that kind, and arrangements for several others are under way.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt and Peter Anson, young and in love, marry secretly, deciding to live their own lives apart until Peter is able to provide for her. Peter is a young, struggling sculptor trying to win a competition for a scholarship abroad and Camilla is the adopted daughter of a wealthy family. She is not to inherit money when she comes of age and so is studying commercial art in the hope of landing an agency job. Others in the story are Avis Werth, another wealthy girl who is trying to win Peter, Sylvia Todd, Peter's model and Gus Matson, his former roommate with whom he has quarrelled. At a party at an exclusive club Peter entertains Camilla's guests with impersonations. When the rest of the members of the party go to a cabaret to continue the gaiety, Peter and Camilla slip off to the beach by themselves and fall asleep on the sand. When they awake it is early morning and Avis and another boy are standing over them. This makes it necessary for Camilla to announce before the party that she and Peter are married. Avis is stunned and Camilla's mother likewise. Camilla and Camilla's mother, likewise, Thorpe and Weeks, an advertising agency, where Camilla has submitted some of her work, sent for her and tell her they have a new account which requires unusual treatment of juvenile art. To Camilla's surprise she learns that the account is that of her foster father's company, which has decided on an extensive campaign to bolster up lagging business. After a conference with Mr. Bowman, Camilla decides to attempt the work. With ideas running hot in her head she goes home and sketches the night sketching. In the morning, armed with her samples she gets out for the agency. The critics were enthusiastic about her work and Mr. Weeks offers her a salary of $3000 a week to start and a prospect of having it doubled. She goes to keep a dinner engagement with Peter. She tells Peter of her good fortune in securing employment. Mrs. Hoyt is also informed that Camilla has obtained work and is going to leave the Hoyt household.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XXXIII

The task of selecting a suitable apartment was not so difficult as Camilla had anticipated. She found vacancies everywhere, and inducements in the way of reduced rates and added accommodations were offered by helpful landlords. She looked at several places, compared prices and possibilities. Rose had insisted that a kitchenette apartment at higher rent would be more economical than taking one room and boarding out. Rose was a marvelous cook and had scolded at Camilla's objection. "But I know so little about housework, Rose, I'm afraid you would have to do most of it for awhile."

"That's nothing! Housework for two? I wish that was all I ever had to think about. And you'll learn fast. I'll teach you to cook in no time."

Camilla was delighted with her first choice at a bargain. It seemed to her. She had ventured a little more than they had planned at first for rent, because of her unexpected good fortune in the position with Weeks and Bowman.

The apartment building was a large one, quite new and therefore more attractive, and a number of vacancies permitted the offer of a advance-entrance suite at a sharp reduction.

There were only one large room with an in-door bed, tiny kitchenette and bath. The floor space equalled less than half that of Camilla's own suite in the Hoyt's big house—but that idea of maintaining this home by her own efforts was so exciting that she wanted to move in at that very hour and begin her new life at once.

She thought, too, as her eyes took inventory of the neat, snug rooms, the dishes ranged in the cupboard and the tiny porcelain sink in the kitchen, that it would be nice to have Peter over to dinner with them occasionally. And perhaps there would be times when Rose was away that she and Peter could play at keeping house alone.

For a moment, she wished achingly that it was Peter who would share the apartment with her instead of Rose, but resolutely dismissed that happy possibility like the good apartment she had promised herself to be.

In the downstairs hall, she used the public telephone to call Rose and ask her to meet her at the apartment to approve her selection. Rose had not been informed of Camilla's new position, but she immediately insisted. "If it suits you, it's okay with me. Just so you don't forget we're not the Dolly sisters maintaining residences on three continents. Go ahead and take a few weeks, and if we have to we can look for a cheaper place later."

"But I want you to see it, Rose—it's a duck of a place. And I want to see you, because I have some good news for you, then I'll drive you home. I would have dinner with you somewhere, but I promised to be home tonight."

"To dine in state one last time? Well, you'd better make the most of it, my dear, because housekeeping is just life everything else in life—better to anticipate than to experience. It will be just so monotonous to pick up your own plate and carry it to the sink to wash it, as it is to watch Bates carry it to the remote regions of the kitchen as if it were a burnt offering for the inner shrine."

Rose's pleasant philosophy and easy chatter rambled on when she inspected the apartment.

"Hot-cha!" was her surprised comment. "Ain't we grand, though? But can we afford it, that's the important question before the house of representatives. Have you balanced your budget both ways?"

Camilla's revelation that she would be able to contribute definitely to the arrangement, called for another "Hot-cha!" from Rose. "You're a whizz, old girl, and no kiddin'!" She was well got wherever you want to go. I wish I were more like you. But her tone held more of admiration than envy.

"You can do anything I can, honey," the elder sister assured her, "and just as soon as I get that raise, you are going to begin that secretarial course."

Rose's dark eyes shone dreamily. "Gee! Kid, you're a swell sister, all right. You know I used to hate you almost when you came to see us with your swell clothes and your car and your grand manners, and I knew we looked like beggars to you, even when we thought we had things pretty nice ourselves. But even then, I couldn't hate you very much. I know you were better because you really aren't a bit snooty—it was all my imagination and jealousy."

"I'm glad you didn't hate me, Rose." Camilla slipped an arm around Rose's shoulders, hungry for the family life that a strange fate had snatched from her. "I've always needed a sister like you, and I want to do something in return for all you are going to teach me."

"About what?"

"Well, you are going to teach me to cook, so I can take care of my Peter some day for one thing. But more than that, I want to learn your viewpoint about life. You are a year younger than I, Rose, and you think you have missed a lot of things I've had. But somehow, you are the one who has lived and grown wise while I have skimmed the surface of superficial trifles. I want to learn how to live deeply and wisely. I believe that you can help me."

Rose was silent for a moment. That she had anything to offer this beautiful, intelligent girl whom fortune had snatched upon, was a surprise to her, but she said presently, with gay innocence. "Well, if it's how to make three and three add seven, and how to turn the skirt of last season's dress into a House for your new suit, you want I'll learn. I can do all that. And I've seen Ma change a roast into stew, then hash and then turn it into a hamburger, myself. Those may sound trivial, my dear, but they are really deep mysteries of my life."

"Any accomplishment that requires thought and skill is a mystery to me," Camilla agreed. "And those which seem the least important are the ones that make the world go round. I've discovered."

Later, when Camilla took her place at the Hoyt table for her last dinner

Almost Instant Relief in this Way

The simple method pictured above is the way doctors throughout the world now treat colds.

It is recognized as the QUICK-EST, safest, surest way to treat a cold. For it will check an ordinary cold almost as fast as you caught it.

as a member of the household, Mr. Hoyt looked at her keenly and remarked, "So, you're leaving us tomorrow. We're going to miss you greatly, Camilla."

"I shall miss both of you, too," Camilla replied honestly. "But I'll come back to see you sometimes. I'll be pretty busy, of course, and won't have much time for pleasure and friends."

"You're mighty lucky to be getting any kind of a position in such times as these."

"Oh, I don't know. I've heard so many people told that they are lucky to have work, even if it doesn't pay much. I can't see it, that isn't fair. If one has ambition and ability to work, why hasn't he a right to earn a decent living? It is only the misfits who are lucky to have jobs," her tone was a trifle defiant.

"Not turning socialist, just because you are going to work are you?" Alexander asked, with a twinkle. "Nothing like that, I believe in the individual, not the masses. But even distinguished individuals are feeling this upheaval."

"They certainly are," Mr. Hoyt agreed, tiredly. He had given no hint to his wife of the condition of his affairs, but it was no betrayal to admit that he was involved in the general depression. Neither did he know that in Camilla's inexperienced hands lay the fate of his future and his business. Queer, those three whose lives had run in a close parallel for so long, and were so interdependent, and so distant; yet not one knew the intimate thoughts and hopes and activities of the others.

Corn Growing on Prairies

A new argument for corn growing on the prairies is found in the experience of last season that grasshoppers will not readily attack the leaves or stalks. In many cases when wheat, oats and barley were stripped, the corn was untouched and provided a feed for live stock.

"Wants the matter, Oscar you look terrible."

"My wife's on a diet."

Blue Bread

Blue-Bread Wheat Intended For Hogs Ground Into Flour In France

France's blue-dyed wheat, intended for hogs has found its way into some of the nation's bread with the result that angry consumers are demanding prosecutions.

Authorities of the government announced 22 tons of flour had been ground from denatured wheat, intended solely for livestock, and sold to bakers of the Tarascon region.

No ill effects from the bread were reported, except to the feelings of the consumers, who concluded that having paid the standard price for their bread, they had been cheated.

A Huge Pendulum

An M-foot pendulum, believed to be one of the largest in the world, has been hung in the Frank Institute in Philadelphia to tell how the earth is rotating. Made of vanadium steel, the pendulum itself is very light, but the bob at the end of it is said to weigh 1,800 pounds. The manner in which the pendulum swings indicates the earth's rotation.

Here and There

Twenty-nine men and seven women who pioneered Alberta trails died in the present year. All of them saw the west when it was young, the west that existed before 1895. The current year marks the hundredth anniversary since the Canadian Pacific came to Calgary.

Sailing for New York December 14, the 42,500-ton white-hulled Empress of Britain left on a Christmas and New Year's holiday cruise for the West Indies. December 22, returning to New York January 3 and sailing again January 4 for a 4½-month cruise around the world.

Among the "Believe It or Not" facts wellknown to the generality of newspaper readers, may be added the statement of S. G. Hibben, of the Westinghouse Light Company, made recently in an address at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto that "today there are some 10,000 different kinds of artificial light sources."

Approximately 75,000 people own the Canadian Pacific Railway through their ownership of the company's common stock. Of these, 35,000 live in Canada. Of the balance, 21,000 live in other parts of the British Empire, mostly in England, with 16,000 in the United States and 5,000 in other countries, mostly continental Europe.

For the first time in western Canada, an impressive ceremony, the age-old investiture of the Knights of St. John was held recently at the Hotel Vancouver, Vancouver when six British Columbia men were admitted by King George, sovereign head of the order, to high honors. Old world costumes and strange rites added to the dignity and color of the proceedings.

Railways and their important functions in the economic existence of the State were stressed by G. G. Ommanney, development commissioner of the Canadian Pacific Railway at the annual banquet of the Traffic Club of Hamilton recently. They had, he said, contributed materially to development of natural resources, building up of industries and in promoting land settlement and agriculture.

Railway and motor truck transportation are both essential to the economic wellbeing of Canada and neither should be antagonistic to the other, stated Hon. R. J. Manion, minister of railways and canals, at a national conference on transportation held at Ottawa recently. But, he added, while railways are subject to strict regulation and control, motor truck service has not as yet been brought under any comparable control or regulation.
